Hoyt's Illuminating Oil.
A NEW ILLUMINATING OIL—The best and safest oil for burning in the household is the new Illuminating Oil, secured to Mr Edwin Hoyt, of Stamford by caveat filed at Washington. Its advantages over kerosene are at once apparent and therefore we announce the fact that we will be glad to know that they will no longer be exposed to danger by its explosive nature. The new oil has neither smoke nor does it emit a disagreeable odor, and it is a more brilliant light than any other known chemical. We have seen it in use and would recommend some enterprising man to purchase the right for this vicinity.—Bridgeport Standard

[COPY]
OFFICE OF STATE ASSAYER,
PORTLAND, Me., March 6th, 1867.
This is to certify that I have this day tested a sample of "Hoyt's Improved Illuminating Oil." The Oil was tested as to all other trials which I have made of similar substances.
At 104° flame was applied to the mouth of the tube, but there was not sufficient evolution of vapor to support combustion. At 155° the flame was lowered, and the vapors burned tranquilly and gently. The result of this test would indicate that the Oil in question is a safe preparation for use in families for household illumination

Despatches to the Evening Times

NEW YORK, May 1

The Inspector of Excise was busy all day yesterday issuing new licenses, those of 1866 being withdrawn The sum total received for licenses during Monday and Tuesday amounted to $140,000

During last week there were 405 deaths in this city and at the public institutions, and 105 in Brooklyn The per centage in both cities, according to Dr Harris, continues to show the deleterious effects of the present tenement house system

The presence of cholera is not expected in any of the large cities of Europe, and we may reasonably expect that the commercial towns in the Mississippi valley will be the only sources whence pestilence can reach us the present year

Petitions are being circulated in Texas, praying the general government to divide the State into two parts, one to be called the "Western State of Texas" The reason alleged, is the loyalty of the population of the propose new State, and the preponderance of secessionists in other portions

Heavy distillery frauds have been discovered in Richmond, Va, and several prominent distillers found their business closed, among them General Henningsen, of Nicaragua notoriety

POLITICAL CHANGES IN THE SOUTH The newspapers from nearly all parts of the south give indications that the people are preparing themselves for action in accordance with the Reconstruction law of Congress The politicians who have been advising them to stand upon their dignity and await the result with sullen indifference, are losing their influence every day A great change has already come over the Southern States The war of races which was predicted has not commenced, and is no longer looked for The black man is coming to be regarded as a reasonable being, capable of being influenced by arguments and public considerations like other men The result is political musings are held which both black men and white attend, free discussion is everywhere allowed, the Republican party is being organized in the south, and all political affairs are taking on a new complexion The probability that parties will be coincident with races is daily diminishing, and negroes and white men are mingling together and taking counsel with one another in a manner that cannot fail gradually to obliterate the recollection that but lately the former were chattels, and the latter their owners A few years of freedom and of the exercise of the rights of citizens, a few years of free schools and of security in their labor and its rewards, will work wonders for the black race, and do more to solve the problems of popular government, than has been done by all the speculations of philosophers

It turns out, that there is no difficulty whatever in organizing the Republican party in the South, save that which is to be expected from the prejudices of the people—prejudices which it is satisfactory to know They need only to be disabused of these prejudices in order to look with a fair share of favor upon the principles and measures of the party of freedom. They see that they must be dependant on this party for a long time to come, and they are thus drawn considerations of interest. In addition to this, now that freedom has been established, and the new order of things has become an irrevocable necessity, the party which has been instrumental in effecting the change, naturally has many advantages over any other It alone is master of the present situation, and for a time at least, must rule the future, and there is really nothing in the principles of the Republican party that is hostile to the Southern minds It goes before them as a broad national party that means to carry equal rights under the constitution to all the people of the country Over all the South this has already been done, and no question in relation to it now remains to be considered or acted upon —[Providence Journal

WENDELL PHILLIPS ON "CONCILIATION" and "Prudence" Wendell spoke in Brooklyn recently, and in the course of his speech said

Magnanimity and conciliation have their law, and other duties have theirs, and the first duty of the hour, bought by blood is that we shall "take a bond of fate," and "make assurance doubly sure," that out of this root there never shall arise a quarrel again, and every man is bound to go up to the extremest limit of conciliation, but no man has a right to sacrifice the shadow of a right that will, by any possibility, risk that one drop of blood shall ever be shed again in this quarrel To deviate one hair's breadth beyond the line of that, certainly is to neglect the duty we owe to the dead War settles something, it has settled that the root of bitterness shall be cut at last forever—that no dollar, no life, no effort, shall ever be required to tread out this particular national combustion One word more upon the doctrine of conciliation I have never yet heard a white man either through the press, the pulpit, or in Congress who undertook to preach conciliation, and added his sermon by offering to sacrifice one jot of his own rights in order to help the South He always sides by offering to sacrifice the negro. It is as if I should enter one of your dwellings and carry out all the provisions, and offer them to some poor family, and then proclaim to the sound of the trumpet, what a charitable man I am! Artemus Ward said once, in 1863, that he felt so patriotic, he longed to fling on the altar of his bleeding country all his wife's male relations This magnanimity is of the same character No man professes to sacrifice one of his own kin, but he magnanimously says on the altar 4,000,000 negroes But it is to no such conciliation and prudence There has been a great deal of talk about prudence, a generous construction of our own position, and consideration for the position of the South, and what are called the radicals of the land have been advised to lay aside their animosity and their hard judgment I have listened to it, for one, long enough, and dare today and here, to say for the first time, what has been in my heart for many months,—there is not a man, not a party, nor a journal in this country, exempted by its past history or by its present attitude to preach magnanimity and conciliation, or prudence, to the anti-slavery party, not one. There has not been a party on this continent that ever forgave so much, forgot so much, or trusted so liberally as the radical party. (Applause) Slandered for forty years, libelled by every journal, the capital of many a press for twenty years having been nothing else but lies about abolitionists; many a politician having ridden into office by his abuse of the men whose names were connected with the anti-slavery party, he has hitherto turned his face Zionward than we shall behold the slandered body of men throbbing backward, and revenge and kindly forgetting, and forgiving and trusting him. (Laughter.)

WASHINGTON, April 30

The opinion of Attorney General Stanbery on the disfranchising clause in the reconstruction acts was read in the Cabinet meeting to day, and will shortly be issued It has been called for by the action of the registers appointed by General Sheridan at New Orleans, who have obeyed instructions issued by D S Dewes, Chairman of the Republican State Committee The opinion of the Attorney General will take the ground that county, city or township officers are not State officers He also asserts that Congress did not mean to exclude a man from voting who had happened to take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and then participated in the rebellion, unless he had held an office which required an oath of fidelity to the National Government The term "engaging in the rebellion," in the opinion of the Attorney General, means such acts of participation as are indictable under the several statutes of the United States and no others Congress must be presumed not to have intended to violate the Constitution by passing an ex post facto law, especially in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Missouri test oath cases, as to giving aid and comfort to the enemy The rebels are not to be regarded as enemies Every doubt, whatever way, is to go in favor of the citizen In short, the opinion is to be a "Copper Johnson" document, which it will be hard for General Sheridan to obey

Secretary Browning remains quite ill at his residence in Georgetown, and Secretary Stanton was also absent, either because he was kept at home by a cold or because he did not wish to discuss the official conduct of General Sheridan Both reasons are given [Sp to Boston Journal

At the regular meeting of the 4th ward republican club last evening, one of the white members offered a resolution declaring that the time has arrived when the republican party should fully recognize the right of the colored man not only to vote, but to be voted for, and that duty and expediency demand that they should, in the coming election in this city, furnish some of the candidates to be supported in the different wards, and at least one on the general ticket These resolutions led to debate, occupying nearly the whole of the evening Only one man opposed it The best speech favoring it was made by a colored man The proposition was finally carried without a dissenting voice

The much talked of rules and regulations by the Supreme Court relative to the bankrupt law will appear in the form of a manual of practice for the use of attorneys and registers, similar in character to the existing manual for equity practice The document will be a book of two hundred pages, made up chiefly of forms The first is now going through the press, the copy being supplied from day to day, as the court has fixed no time for preparing it A strong effort is making to complete the work, so that it can be submitted to the full bench for approval or revision by the middle of May —[Sp to Boston Adv

THE GREAT EXPOSITION.

PARIS, France, April 5, 1867

To the Editor of the Daily Whig

The ground plan of the Exposition building is like a cart wheel, the hub being a flower garden with statuary, and a portico round it, under which the people can sit. The rim is an immense iron roof, about one mile in circumference, and about sixty feet high, supported on iron columns and iron arches, the space between the columns and under the arches being filled by great plates of thick and pure glass The roof, the columns, and the arches, are all painted a sort of brick color which contrasts well with the white glass, and I think the building viewed from the outside makes a very fine appearance, especially on a fair day, when the flags of all nations are flying from some hundred or more flag staffs which are run up above it The remainder of the building, between the rim and the hub, is also composed of iron and glass, but is only 30 or 40 feet high Streets, some wide and some narrow, run from the hub to the rim like the spokes of a wheel — Other streets run in concentric circles, between the rim and the hub Each nation has a space between these spokes, and is required to place its paintings and statuary next the hub, then its silks and velvets, &c, &c in a certain order, its machinery being under the rim, so if you go from the centre to the circumference you see what belongs to one nation, if round in one of the circles, you see what belongs to that department of all nations The arrangement is good, and the building well fitted for its purpose

There are many small buildings in the very extensive garden surrounding the main building, intended to illustrate the styles of architecture of different countries, and for the exhibition of what the main building will not hold The garden will not attain its all beauty till June, though some of the hot houses are in their full glory now Not more than half of the things intended for exhibition were in place when we were there, and probably they will not all be ready till the first of May

It undoubtedly will be the greatest World's Fair which has ever been held, but whether it will pay the world what it will cost the world, is very questionable The great object of such an Exhibition is to enable merchants, manufacturers and people engaged in every other kind of business, to compare their own machinery, mode of operation and results, with those of all other nations On this account, the first Great Exhibition held in London in 1851, was of great public benefit, and others once in ten or twenty years, will no doubt be worth all they cost, but the success of the first has created a rage for them, and they are now started as money speculations, and they are becoming a heavy tax on the business community One man is obliged to exhibit, because others do in the same line of business He has to construct rooms, show cases, &c, in the place that is assigned him on the ground under the great roof, every one asks him if double price for everything, he has to transport and put up his goods and have men to exhibit them and he makes no sales, and derives no advantage to compensate for the great expense

The Prussians have been talking about having a great exhibition at Berlin in three years, but I think the business world will not hunger for another for some time

To the man who has a special motive for comparing all that has been done in the world in a particular pursuit, the exhibition may be both useful and interesting One who has no time for extensive travel, will be pleased with it for a week or two, but will get tired much sooner than he expected To the great body of travelers and sight seers who make what is called the tour of Europe, the exhibition will not be found of great interest, because they have seen in detail most of what is here collected It is only gardens, buildings picture galleries, museums, and shop windows Each man exhibits here what he is constantly exhibiting at home

The American part of the exhibition was sadly unready The American Commissioners say it is the fault of the Imperial Commission I was however proud of a fire place of California marble of a variegated kind, more beautiful, I think, than any I have seen in Europe Another made of white marble, from Vermont, is very fine — Another made from Tennessee marble looked tame besides them,

So far there is no crowd of people in Paris, though rather more than usual in April I conversed with a very intelligent steamship man, who said that the people did not come in the steamers from America as they had expected, and there were no indications that they would do so He feared that the general depression of business both there and here would tend to prevent it, and he thought likely that the rage for travel and for spending money, in the United States, was abating Such spasms, he thought, could not be expected to last more than two years at a time

I spoke of the great amount of money spent in Europe by the 40,000 travellers from the United States, some having estimated the number as high as sixty thousand He said yes, but the extravagant habits which Europe was learning of America, do it more hurt than all the money does it good He said the business men and working people of Europe, used to be economical, but they were borrowing our habits of expensive living I replied that I knew we took our fashions and many of our notions, from Europe, but I did not suppose the old country would condescend to follow us, but he insisted on his position

I think the Great Exhibition on the whole, will pay the French, for all the buildings and gardens will be left, and will, I have no doubt, be one of the prominent attractions of Paris, and help to continue her reputation as being the most attractive city in the world. I presume the main building will be used for shops for the display and sale of jewelry fancy goods, and thousands of such curiosities as travellers buy

It is said that there are usually the average, 40,000 strangers at a time in Paris, and almost every one of them will go to Paris to see there daily, this among present things, and the people of Paris will go there too. The gardens, [illegible] museums, galleries and [illegible] by most of the world. [illegible] spoke of Paris [illegible] them.

REPUBLICANISM IN EUROPE The effects of the suppression of our great rebellion are manifesting themselves unmistakeably in various ways among the people of the old monarchies and despotisms of Europe The N. Y Sun mentions one significant instance of a political meeting recently held in Brussels. It was composed of Republican representatives from England, France, Ireland, Spain, and Italy, and had for its object the discussion of political affairs and the organization of a Republican party throughout Europe It is evident from the proceedings of this Convention, and from other appearances, that republican ideas are spreading steadily all over Europe In the most despotic countries there is an able and active class of Republican agitators, who cannot be silenced by threats or punishment, and who are laboring persistently for the rights of the people, and against despotism and oppression France would be Republican today, were the question of government submitted to the people Nothing but military power and police vigilance keep down the strong popular feeling in favor of a Republic, but no power can extinguish or eradicate the sentiment Even in England—the most liberal of monarchies—there has lately become prominent a very large party avowedly in favor of such a modification of the government as it would make it virtually Republican The working classes are almost entirely in sympathy with Republicanism, and would be glad of an opportunity of giving it a trial Ire and is manifesting its desire to escape the yoke of monarchy in a very emphatic manner, and is, of course, strongly republican Germany has a large and independent republican population Switzerland has long been wholly republican, and by her example has stimulated millions in their aspirations for liberty The republican party in Spain has grown so large and influential that their present illiberal government is constantly busied in watching and thwarting the plans of the insurrectionists, of whom Gen Prim is the recognized leader Italy has also a large and sanguine population ready for any revolutionary measures looking to the establishment of a republic Hungary, Poland and Greece have all a strong infusion of republican ideas and aspirations, and all endeavors to quench this flame of liberty only make it burn the brighter The Powers of Europe see and appreciate their danger full well, but despite their antipathy to everything which savors of popular rights, republican influence is every year wresting from them additional concessions Gradually, but surely the true principles of human government are gaining ground, and sooner or later will achieve a signal and universal triumph It is but a question of time The people are releasing themselves from the grasp that has galled them so long, and once free, it will be impossible to deprive them of their liberties — The tendency of the age is towards republicanism, and nothing can arrest the progress of ideas, over the whole civilized world, that will in time inaugurate a new era in the history of mankind The bare fact that the prominent republicans of Europe can meet in a European capital without molestation, to discuss measures confessedly adverse to their governments, is in itself a striking instance of the compulsory deference awarded that party by ruling powers

RETIREMENT OF SEC'Y SEWARD A letter from Auburn in the New York Herald says that the recent visit of Secretary Seward to his home was preliminary to his retirement from the stage of politics and public life, where, during the past forty years, his role has been so prominent a one

A circular issued by Messrs D Appleton & Co states that since the first appearance of Webster's Elementary Speller, some thirty-five years ago, not less than forty million copies have been printed Its actual sales during the past year were over 1,590,000 copies

A WORLD ON FIRE The constellation of Corona has a star which, from its peculiar appearance, is called the "Burning Star" — It has attracted unusual attention among the astronomers both in Europe and America — The extraordinary outbursts or changes in its apparent size and condition leave but little doubt that it is really a world on fire

A long time ago a little boy, 12 years old, on his way to Vermont, stopped at a country tavern and paid for his lodging and breakfast by sawing wood, instead of asking it as a gift Fifty years later the same boy passed the same little inn as George Peabody, the banker, whose name is the synonym of magnificent charities—the honored of two hemispheres

We learn from the Savannah Republican that a company is forming to introduce the cultivation of coffee on a large scale in South Florida It is proposed to engage about 2,500 laborers Capital $9,000,000, of which ten per cent only is to be collected for the first year The company propose to turn an honest penny by every available resource, such as fisheries, sale of lumber, sale of lands to settle, &c

Gen Sheridan seems determined to reconstruct Louisiana thoroughly on the principles of the reconstruction act, and, if let alone by President Johnson he will undoubtedly succeed It is now said that he has organized a military commission for the trial of crime of which no notice has been taken by the local authorities. This, if true, will involve a general reckoning among the actors in the daily massacre

Among the registrars appointed by Major General Sheridan for the 2d district of New Orleans, appears the name of Mr T. Thomas, a representative of a large and respectable class of free colored people in that city He has passed the meridian of life, is a native of the city, and has been for many years a commission broker in Exchange Alley He is a man of irreproachable character, and his appointment proves very popular to all classes of citizens

A Yorkshireman has just been sentenced to a year's imprisonment in England, for theft. For the last 23 years he has supported himself by the manufacture of spurious fossils. Roman remains, coins, flint instruments, and other forged relics of the Roman and ancient British periods, with which he has deceived many of the most eminent antiquarians of the kingdom In 1859, having been detected by Prof. Tennant, he was induced to exhibit before various learned societies his method of manufacturing spurious flints

Cincinnati had a free drink of whisky the other day The vast amount of fluid spilled, liberated by the burning of a large distillery a few days ago, ran down and mingled with the pure water of Deer creek, and from there found its way to the reservoir, and thence to the pipes which supply the city with water. The N Y. Times says that the reports of the health of Hon E B Washburn, who was compelled by illness to leave Congress before the close of the session, are not as reassuring as his friends could wish His disease is one that affects the spine, and its treatment is necessarily very difficult. The Chicago Young Men's Christian Association leads all others in its wide-awake activity Its last movement is to go to the postoffice, get such letters as have been mailed without being stamped, and which would be sent to the dead letter office, affix stamps to them, and send them on their way to rejoice the hearts of the writers and receivers Several grateful recipients of these letters have already acknowledged the service the association has done them, by sending contributions to it from fifty cents to five dollars

STOPPAGE OF WORK IN LOWELL. The Lowell Citizen says that the Tremont Mills and Suffolk Manufacturing Co of that city have given the operatives in their employ notice of a partial stoppage of work in their mills One half of the work on each corporation is to be stopped on the expiration of the notice and the manufacture of woolen goods is to be entirely suspended The mill will again be fully run as heretofore whenever the demand for goods shall warrant running full time The Courier learns further that there is a purpose to curtail the business on other corporations of the city — Operatives, as usual, are every week leaving and there is no disposition to fill their places and those out of employ find it very difficult, if not impossible, to get work How long this state of things is to exist is of course unknown, even to the officers of the companies

One of the reasons urged (says the Traveller, why there cannot be an intention of fighting on the part of the French Emperor is, that the half million of Chassepot breech loading rifles ordered by him will not be ready before the first of next March. Perhaps not, all of them, but because all were contracted for to be delivered by that date, it does not follow that all are to be delivered at that date, and none before its arrival — The last of them must be delivered then, and not the entire lot It is almost ten months since the Emperor began to arm his infantry with breech loaders, and it is not likely that he has had none of his orders fulfilled in that time Supposing that he has had only 20,000 a month made and served to the army, he could arm 200,000 men now, and trust to the manufacturers to keep up the supply, and it should be remembered that there must be about 24,000 manufactured every month to complete the contract's terms by the 1st of next March, or the supposition that the work began on the 1st of last July Then the Emperor is said to have been buying breech-loaders in various parts of Europe, and in America Foreign manufactories are at his command as they were at ours The men of Liege could turn out thousands for him every month, or for any body who should be ready to buy them at a good price,—and the Emperor never would have offered the $20,000,000 for Luxemburg, had he not been as ready to buy the tools necessary in the sort of work that alone could ratify his bargain

DR. SCHENCK'S

NEW OFFICE.

DR. J. H SCHENCK, of Philadelphia, has opened an office on second floor of No. 35 HANOVER STREET, Boston, where he will be professionally every WEDNESDAY, from 9 to 3. Every person consulting with Consumption or any disease leading to it, is invited to call on him He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer the charge is five dollars

Dr. Schenck can explain to the patients very correctly the stage of their disease, and how to use his medicines namely his Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills, without the use of the Respirometer but by it he can tell exactly how far the lungs are gone, and what part also whether it is Tubercle Consumption, Bronchial or Dyspeptic Consumption, or whether it is merely an ulcerated throat and cough, or from Liver Complaint.

His medicines have full directions so any one can take them without seeing him, but if they live near by and are well enough, it is best to see him. All three of his medicines are required in nearly every case of lung disease, for it is impossible to cure Consumption unless the stomach and liver are kept in perfect order To get lungs in a healing condition the stomach must be cleansed, and an appetite for good rich food created, so as to make good blood before the lungs will begin to heal, then the chills and night sweats will stop, and the expectoration become free and easy

He keeps a full supply of medicines at his rooms which can be had at all times

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, each $1.50 per bottle, or $7 50 the half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents per box

An Effectual Worm Medicine

BROWN'S VERMIFUGE COMFITS,

Or Worm Lozenges Much sickness, undoubtedly with children and adults, attributed to other causes, is occasioned by worms The "VERMIFUGE COMFITS," although effectual in destroying worms, can do no possible injury to the most delicate child — This valuable combination has been successfully used by physicians, and found to be safe and sure in eradicating worms, so hurtful to children.

CHILDREN HAVING WORMS require immediate attention, as neglect of the trouble often causes prolonged sickness

L K Bogy late Commissioner of Indian Affairs in a card published this morning states that he purchased two millions of dollars worth of Indian goods when in New York but on the contrary did not purchase a single dollars worth in the open market Further that he went to New York in company with two other parties detailed from the Indian Bureau as special agents to examine into the packing and forwarding of goods bought from contractors and that Blair's worth received by them was purchased from these per cent having contracts for the whole will amount to less than $300 and not one half of which is in blankets

Attorney General Stanbery's opinion on the registration clause in the military bill is very liberal and will enable nearly all those prohibited from registering by Gen Sheridan to become voters.

NEW YORK, May 1

The Connecticut State Legislature organ to today Gov English in his message the status quo of public affairs is in every point important He urges that as a return of a common country we should strive to extinguish the vindictive resentments engendered by the late civil war, which was waged to maintain the supremacy of the federal constitution and the integrity of the political Union He states that the great end for which the war has not yet been attained the Union is not yet restored The States have been a part of the national government by the action of Congress Such a result permitted would transform the Union into a despotism He deems the course of legislation pursued by Congress which is unwarranted and fatal—as fatal to the Union and the constitution as the doctrine of secession

The legislation of the 39th Congress, to a material extent was a series of usurpations and violations of the Constitution He argues that Congress had no more power under the Constitution to establish military governments in the Southern States than to create an order of nobility in England and claims that Congress assumed that power solely for the purpose of more thoroughly securing the subversion of State authority

If Congress can legislate for those States it is not difficult to foresee a likelihood in the minds of other States and the right of those states to regulate their own internal affairs in their own way will henceforth be subject to the caprice of Congress

He speaks of the Senate as arrogating the power to select and confirm and as dictating to the President in regard to his appointments It was in pursuance of a purpose to absorb within its grasp the functions which legitimately appertain to other branches of the Government, that it was proposed to make the pardoning power from the President, where the Constitution had placed it and confer it by an ex post facto proceeding on Congress.

He does not doubt the tacit subrogation of the Southern people to the rules provided for them but serious questions will arise from the precedent established by Congress

NEW ORLEANS, April 30.

Part es arrived by this morning's steamer from the Mexican border, report that Matamoras was besieged for a few days by Canales, who is en route for Tampico

It is believed also that Cortinas will bring his army from the North and aid in expelling Gen Berriozabal from the Gubernatorial chair of Tamaulipas, and this indicates that Juarez is still alive, and ambitious to become President of Mexico, and that he will issue his first proclamation from the heroic city

MAINE STATE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' UNION The Second Annual Convention of the Maine State Soldiers' and Sailors' Union will convene at Portland, in the hall of the Army and Navy Union, on the 4th and 5th of June next. We learn that preparations are making by the local Union there to give their comrades a cordial reception, and make their stay as pleasant as possible. A full representation from all the local Unions in the State is desirable, as the business of the Union will be entirely domestic, no political topics will be discussed, nothing to cause dissension. —Portland has just hired $50,000 to pay for widening streets, and $50,000 more to be expended on the new City Railway The orders went through the City Council without a ripple of opposition The people, by more than a two-thirds vote, have also voted this week, to loan $700,000 to build a new railroad which commences some thirty miles from Portland There is little hesitation about anything that will benefit the business of that city They are piling up a big city destined for all sorts of enterprises and improvements—but the citizens will grow all the richer for it. It is a good investment of money

A SPECIMEN SWINDLE We cut the following from the columns of a city paper

THE EARTHQUAKE AT THE WEST. The St. Louis Dispatch says the earthquake felt in that city the other day was not generally perceived by the citizens, although it was as decided and rude a jostle as those who did feel it care about being subjected to. It possessed the peculiarity of exhibiting itself at certain places, and of making no perceptible signs in others—as if it were a subterranean billow of undulation that rose and fell in its movements, reaching the surface only at some points of its progress. Thus is was strongly felt at the Southern Hotel, that great building vibrating perceptibly under the influence, and still more strongly felt in some stores, in one of which a lamp was upset, and in another the occupant of the second story left, fearing the building would fall The shock was very distinctly felt at the City Hall In other parts of the city the tremor was not felt at all and most people did not know there had been an earthquake

A western exchange says that, last July, Mr Jefferson Olmstead of Savannah, Ohio, missed a hog weighing some 200 pounds, and nothing was seen or heard of him until last week, when Mr Olmstead having occasion to take down a straw stack on his place, his swineship was discovered underneath There was no doubt, from the signs and the facts given, that the hog had been in the straw since last July He was probably asleep in the straw when the stack was being made, which was the time the hog was missed, and was covered up so completely and closely that he could not escape The hog seemed to be as well as ever, save the falling off in weight

Punch illustrates 'unbecoming levity' by presenting a woodcut of the scene in church wherein a crowd of spectators are awaiting the arrival of a wedding party To this scene is appended this dialogue by way of glossary.

LITTLE DAISY.

Broad and green spread field and meadow,
Half in sunshine half in shadow,
For the day is nearly over
When on tiptoe through the clover
Happy careless little rover,
Daisy comes to hide from brother

Dimpled cheeks and wide blue eyes
Where a world of mischief lies
Swinging broad brimmed hat in hand
Merriest of the merry band,
Letters show the bare white foot
Through the clover blossoms sweet

Looking cautiously around
Down she sits upon the ground
And amid flowers white and red
Moves the restless little head
Where he rings of silken hair
Flashing in the sunlight fair

Waiting the expected call
Fairest blossoms of them all
Little eyes are growing narrow
Cannot watch the twittering sparrow,
Who with earnest quaint endeavor
Strives to smooth each ruffled feather

Gently close the eyes of blue
Lashes sweep the cheeks soft hue
Where no other sound is heard
Save the hum of bees and bird,
There among the clover deep
Tired Daisy has asleep

With one tiny hand and face
Buried in the clustering hair
Cherry lips are parted now,
Plays the wind over cheek and brow
Grow the shade deeper deeper—
Angels watch the little sleeper.

* * * * * * *

Once again the light and shadow
Flicker over field and meadow
And the pleasant south winds hover
Round the rocking heads of clover—
Sparrows gossip with each other
For the day is nearly over

In a silent darkened room
Roses breath a rich perfume
Lilies with a still white face
Violets with their gentle grace
Sigh a quiet fragrant prayer
On the warm soft summer air.

With the floating curls of gold
With the subtle smile of old
Resting on thy face so fair,
There among the flowers rare
In a slumber calm and deep
Little Daisy has asleep

Cold the blue veined marble brow
Folded be the hands of snow
Never more will little feet
Flatter through the clover sweet
Crow the shadows deeper deeper
God hath claimed the little sleeper!

NASBY AGAIN.

The Connecticut Election—The effect upon it of the Corners and Lincoln at Washington—A proposition to Remove the College report &c

WASHINGTON, April 7, 1867

The news uv the election in Connecticut created the most profound sensashun at the Corners Intelligencer uv so onexpected, so like a clap uv thunder from a clear sky or rather like a sunbeam uv sunshine thro a mass uv overpowerin black clouds, so like the first streak of sunshine in the mornin after a long nite of colera morbus with no brandy in the house that we wuz overpowered with it The Corners hevn't experienced such a satisfactory spasm uv joy sence the news uv the Fort Pillar affair It produced a very singular effect on Deakin Pogram When I came up to him with the news, he was engaged with all the clokshun he possessed trying to convince a nigger, which formerly belonged to him, that after all, the southerners themselves wuz the only ones which the niggers could trust and that when the time came for em to exercise the lective franchise of they hed any regard for their own interests they would turn their backs on the Abolisholts, who wuz to a man hory headed deceivers and trust them and them only who knowed em

Samyoosl sed the Deakin, in an affeckshunate tone with one hand on the nigger's shoulder 'why shouldent we love yoo? You are bone uv our bone and flesh uv our flesh—we are uv one blood—(this remark the Deakin got into the habit some years ago uv getting off when speakin uv the Dimocrasy North and allus uses it It is rather effecting, tho in this instance I hed sum in his place, I shoodent have slung it out, owin to the peculiar construckshun which it to be put into it)—and our interests is one Sam yoosl'

'Deakin, sez I, interrupting him, 'Deakin' Connecticut has spoken in thunder tones, and hez gone Dimocratic!—

'What' sez he 'Dimocratic!'

'Verily, sez I 'A Governor and three Congressmen out of four

There was a sudden rupcher of friendly relashens existin between the Deakin and Samyoosl the dark complexioned If he wuz uv he Deakin's flesh the Deakin was in favor uv mortifyin it for never wuz flesh so belabored ez wuz that unfortunit chap this Thoflesh wuz imcjitly lasserated He pitched into him ferosbus, and after pummelin the astonished Afrekin (who did not see why the result of a slecksbum should work such a change) till he wuz out uv breath, he condanst wot strength wuz remainin into one vigorous kick, exclaimin—

Take that, you black swindler I've talk ed sweet to you under false pretenses I've been betrayed into wastin soft sawder onto a nigger—into convin wher I hev odensible rite to command—into—

What does all this mean?' sed the nigger faintly

Mean!' sed I to him 'my frend this is the reaction we've heard so much about—its arriv It means that there is a exceedingly good chance uv your bein redoost agin to your normal spoer—uv your comin down from this high hoss you've bin a ridin, and in being agin a servant onto your brethren It means that Connecticut has spoken, and that your a good deal more valyooable to us now than you wuz a hour ago Go, my frend and buy salve for your brooses, for unless your hoeid your valyoo will be less in the market You'd be ashamed to sell for a low price, wooden you?

I left the Dimocrasy jubilatin and come on to Washington fishin that I must go where I could find kindred soles The nite I arrived there way high carnival at the White House The President wuz in tall feather Their wuz Connecticut visible all over him He hed a wooden nutmeg for a buzzum pin—a miniatoor basswood ham hung from his watch fob and in honor uv the occasion they wuz drinkin punches made uv Noo England rum, with small slices uv Weatherfield onyans in em instead of lemmons Randall sp ang toward me ez I entered the room, and clasped me by one hand, the President by the other, and wathen—not altogether unlike the three graces—embraced They had the advantage uv me ez they hed one color the ocean wash I hedn't, but I alood it Why not? when that color wuz from the breaths uv those hevin the spiritin power? I wood hev stood it hed they bin eatin sauerkrauts

At this junction Sekretary Wells come in.

'Ha!' said he, why this unwonted hilarity! why this joy wher greef generally holds her court!'

'The Connecticut election,' said Seward

'Oh, to be sure,' sed the venerable old man, vacantly, 'I remember Hawley, wuz it, or some other man, what wuz his name? —our candidate?'

That was last yeer!' sed Seward sigrily

Well, perhaps it wuz When did that Statt vote agin?' asked he innocantly, to which no answer was given But very little attention is paid to Sekretary Wells by any one 'cept in Seward, and the fact that he occasionally undertaks to keep him posted in current events is generally taken as evidence that he's breakin up Poor William! it's evident that he's passin into his dotage

There was a pleasant gathering. Jonas wuz there, and Spalding and Garret Davis and Seward and Brooks, and more congratulatory jokes were tumbled than were in a pair of his Noo York stomachs. Jonas Bennett, by hevin a little extra cold water thrown on his feelings, was quite cooled down, and wuz almost himself again. He wuz heard to say that he wuz proud to call his friend, Mayor Wallace, of New Orleans, hood that, after this evidence of his personal bravery, Governor Hahn, of Louisiana, would be pleased to call him friend. He wuz also heard to say that he felt like a man who had been lifted from the nightmare of a night of horrors into the sunlight of a peaceful morning, and that he felt like a man who had been released from the rack and the thumbscrew, and that he felt like a man who had been released from the rack and the thumbscrew, and that he felt like a man who had been released from the rack and the thumbscrew
